*When the time comes to Abolish the government, the tyrants,
where will you stand?*

Don't Just Declare, Do!

In 2003 I started my radio show out of Scottsdale, Arizona, "Declare Your Independence with Ernest Hancock" and within the first few weeks a caller asked, "If I'm going to declare my independence why do so 'with' anyone else? Ooooo good point."

This conversation prompted my saying often, "This is how you declare your independence, 'I declare my independence'... and you didn't even need a government form".

A "Declaration" is a notice/announcement that doesn't require any sort of affirmation, permission slip or permit. I've recently been befuddled by a County in SW Arizona that requires a permit to no longer need permits to construct your own home on your land. What???

If I were denied this same sort of option in another county would I have an Equal Protection Clause claim? The U.S. Constitution's 14th Amendment is all about laws not favoring some individuals over others. The idea that a particular race (gender, religion, opinion, ethnicity etc... County?) would provide some special rights or privileges was abhorrent to the American Experiment. But should we worry that making the claim that I was denied equal protection under law living in another County of Arizona result in the elimination of this option for others?... now you are all equally slaves.

We may be Open Range slaves that are free to travel... well usually, or move where we want without penalty (well now you may have to pay for leaving California)... OMGawd it is getting a lot worse faster isn't it.

I lived in Central Florida until 1973 at 12 years of age in a small town of less than 5000 where my father grew up. Then our family (parents me and my 2 younger sisters) moved to Arizona where my mother was from. As a young boy with the TV news on during dinner watching the same scenes repeated over and over of the war in Vietnam, Civil Rights protests, Hippies, Drugs, Sex Education in Public Schools, Forced Busing, The Cold War, Coming Ice Age, Nuclear Winter, Acid Rain, Over Population, Assassinations and Fear Propaganda on every media outlet coordinated by... They/Them/Those, that will not leave us alone. I was sharing this perspective with a 13 year old Nephew in NYC and he said, "Sounds like Woke 1.0" Wow! Yes it was.

Now 50 years later, the Intent is the same. Newer tech/methods target every segmented category of humanity imaginable as T3 (They/Them/Those) further an ancient agenda of control of the masses by a protected elite. The need for your eyes and ears to be focused on the propaganda of the moment is obvious. In decades past broadcast media provided access to an entire population. Now we are segmented into a diversity of interests as diverse as humanity itself. So what will focus our attention when so many flashing neon signs pointing to brightly lit shiny objects are paraded in front of us? Death, Dying and Destruction seems the 'go to option' for getting you to notice. Then all of the tools used to keep your face blue from the device light you prefer, are employed to make sure that you keep thinking about a particular subject and that your opinion about these 'Existential Issues' is the approved/endorsed opinions of T3.

What is the mechanism for advocating a different opinion or just Opting Out... Voting?

Voting requires a system of integrity, honesty, accuracy, access, participation and verified trust. Those in charge of supplying these traits possess none of these values so we As Individuals are left with the only option people have been exercising throughout human history,... Non-Compliance.

Declarations of Intent by powerful individuals and institutions have saturated our lives and have been clear about what is planned for our futures without our informed consent, just our expected compliance. Agendas, Executive Orders, Elitist Proclamations have never fell under the category of 'Friendly Advice'. At best they are warnings for you to get your mind right about what is intended to happen and the expectation of your compliance,... or else.

Or else what?... 'Or else we'll make you, that's what!' Government leaders are now claiming that no one was forced to take a vaccine. All of the tyrannical impositions placed on those that refused to comply doesn't count if you didn't have a jack boot on the back of your neck as they forced The Crown's Notions and Potions into your flesh... which is next BTW.

And Declarations are meaningless without actions affirming the declaration. Heck, I don't need a declaration for my non-compliance. I act freely, think freely and live freely to the exact degree I choose to. Impositions on my life and those of my loved ones that I find intolerable I ignore and prepare my defense (which is often a really creative offensive move in the realm of Public Opinion). But first you must have made a decision to 'Make'em Make'ya'. But know that you will be inconvenienced to the degree that They/Them/Those that won't leave you alone can get away with.

Well over a dozen lawsuits I have filed against various levels of government on issues I found intolerable. While I have changed many laws in Arizona, I never had the slightest impact on the Bad Guys' intent. So no real change in government has ever been truly accomplished. But I learned quickly several decades ago that it was the battle itself that did the most damage to T3. We all benefited from the public awareness and General Public Opinion that resulted on issues we thought important enough to make part of an election cycle, be discussed in public and private and force layers of government to proclaim their position on the issue. We were mostly demanding that our governments,... "SAY IT!" Whatever "it" is.

If you can clearly define the Intentions of T3 then you know where we are heading. And it is your compliance that is required to get there. Independence doesn't require a declaration. The American Declaration of Independence was a courtesy. "...a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation."

So I'm not advocating anything other than a realization that in the end this is a personal decision that doesn't require a declaration, it requires countless and regular actions asserting your independence. What you do to sustain your life is an exercise in liberty, the products of your life's liberty is your property. Life, Liberty, Property is really 3 ways of saying the same thing,... how I define that which is Mine.

You can not be independent if you are dependent. Our working to be more independent of external influences on our lives is what launched America to the top of human living standards so quickly, but then that also made our vast middle class a target for many reasons (wealth, influence, competition) and we are under a direct attack. And I am of the opinion that there is no collective response that will not be high jacked. It must be a General Public Opinion that we insulate ourselves from collective controls by being as self sufficient as we are able and pass this awareness on to Generation Next.

I don't anticipate that the shift in direction will be as convenient as centralized systems will promise but I do know that more stability will result when decentralization provides unlimited access to supply demanded by humans in need. And Peace and Freedom will be the measure of our success.

Don't just Declare, Do!

Peace,

Did you know that Liberty Uncensored also creates video content?

We do podcast appearances and interviews with freedom fighters of all sorts. Some are in person at events like The Greater Reset, and some are done digitally, but they're all available on a platform called ODYSEE, which is built on the LBRY BLOCKCHAIN.

Odyssey.com is looking to replace YouTube (among others), with its decentralized, censorship-resistant content network. The network has been around for many years now, and has millions of active users, as well as being one of the main hubs for alternative & independent media sources, who have been forced from mainstream platforms over the past 5 years.

The LBRY network functions in a decentralized way, and everyone with an account can choose to download & host any content they want. That's right, suddenly each of us can be the hosting network for the channels we support, taking that power back from mega-corporations like Youtube, Google, Meta, etc.

All different kinds of content can be shared to the LBRY chain, including videos, photos, audio, text posts, PDFs, and so on. Video creators get paid per view in LBC (the cryptocurrency of the network), and everyone can earn coins via the assorted gamification options, like earning every time you update the app, earning for watching videos at least 3 days a week, earning for everyone who signs up via your referral link, and so on.

HERE'S LIBERTY UNCENSORED'S ODYSEE INVITE LINK:
HTTPS://ODYSEE.COM/\$/INVITE/@LIBERTYUNCENSORED:B

Everyone who signs up using this link earns free LBC, and so does the paper. If you already have an account, this will take you right to our channel, and if you don't want to create an account, you can still just click through to the channel.

The Private Search Engine That Pays You?

In the world of today, most people depend on the internet to find information about the world. More specifically, they often depend on search engines, to find the things they want out on the internet.

The problem with this is likely obvious to everyone reading, with corporations like Google & Bing controlling most people's access. There have been alternatives over the years, like Ecosia & DuckDuckGo... but most of them are equally censored, and many just aren't very good at finding what you are searching for. Presearch is re-creating the search engine... but a decentralized, private search engine. Using a network of decentralized nodes (which anyone can set up and earn crypto), your searches jump to a node that strips away all the metadata, and then jump to a different node, who then sends the queries out, with the results making their way back to you in a similar way. Presearch has their own search engine, and you can also use it to search anything from Amazon to YouTube to Booking... to dozens of other sites - all with the aforementioned node-hopping to privatize your activity.

At the moment, this decentralized & privatized version of searching the is minutely slower than just directly using something like Google or DuckDuckGo... but there's always trade offs in life. Since the trade-off for this very slight delay is greatly increased privacy and that you get paid 0.1 PRE tokens for every search you do (up to 30 per day), just think of it as getting paid for a short wait :-)

Signing up via our referral link awards 25 PRE tokens to you, and 25 PRE to the newspaper:

Real News? Real Life?

The sources by which we acquire knowledge must be vetted with as much scrutiny as the evaluation of the information itself. If at any time we allow ourselves to become lazy and negligent in our investigation of Truth we will become slaves to the self-appointed truthkeepers and gatekeepers of knowledge. The information monopolies that exist today are as ephemeral as their constructed narratives. They are only powerful so long as they receive the attention and observances of large portions of the population. The moment we recognize that "real news" cannot exist where these monopolists have control, we can begin the process of removing our attention and energy from their soul-sucking programs. In the effort to discover unmolested information, distributed by those who honor Truth more than individualistic and self-serving agendas, one must undergo a tedious process of trail and error. If only there was a simple and trustworthy source that could bear the trust of the people. Instead, it comes down to the vigilance of the individual. It is up to you to stay investigative, vigorous, and unyielding in your demand for Truth in the content that you allow to become part of your worldview.

The average person is extremely susceptible to suggestion. In the movie They Live, the characters must don special sunglasses to be able to see through the illusion that has stripped them of their critical thinking, clear observation and perception. In reality, the illusion most are confronted by is simply their own willful ignorance. Take the time to meditate and contemplate the deeper motives for all that exists in your environment and you will undoubtedly begin to see the subconscious manipulations that have been placed all around you to suggest and incentivise your subservience to the ultimate beneficiaries of your voluntary surrender of your sovereignty.

The largest market in the world is Attention. Where people put their attention correlates directly to what direction humanity takes going into the future. The mainstream news was never truthful, unbiased, or independent as the regulation of information has been a priority of governments and monopolists and other oppressive entities throughout history. As mainstream news loses more and more market share of attention... alternative, localized, independent, and unique news channels are taking its place. While mainstream newspapers are losing money and readers, independent newspaper readership is on the rise. More people are reading independent newspapers than mainstream newspapers. We have entered the endgame. The forces of tyranny, transhumanism and technocracy have played many of their cards in the hopes of engaging the control apparatuses they have been constructing for generations.

If this sounds extreme, you have not been educating yourself and paying attention to what's happening in this world.

While you have been "getting by", head down, not causing any problems, and just surviving, the globalist psychopathic cartel has been very active, manipulating the minds of billions of human beings. It's such an extraordinary endeavor that it may seem impossible, but for those that have dedicated themselves to research, investigation, and education, we know of the motives, intentions, and agendas of these self-titled "elites".

Sexual exploitation of children, the "education system" that removes critical thinking, the centralization of authority through government and financial systems, the corruption of health through toxification of our environment, our food, our technology, and our minds, and the complete reversal of humanity's enlightenment.

Its time to start paying attention. It was time for revolution 200 years ago. Today it is time for Renaissance. Will you join us?

Revolution To Renaissance

The world is changing. Not just today, but always. We are in a constant state of flux, of transmutation of the old into the new. With change comes new ideas, new methods, new technologies, and new philosophies. What we know is built on the work of our ancestors and what we give to our children is validation of the wisdom or folly of what came before. Revolution is the work of the dead. Renaissance is the work of the living.

Our ancestors fought for freedom with sword and shield, with the knowledge that they would trade one form of authority to another. That is the definition of revolution. To revolve. To move 360 degrees, and finally come to the same place as before. The question was, who is the better ruler?

Today the question is, what are the rules? Without need for a ruler to administer judgment, punishment, or justice, the people become self-governed, voluntarily yoked together under natural law and mutually agreed upon association. Anarchy.

In 1776, representatives of the Whig perspective gathered to declare that the injustice of the current government was far overdue for repair, or abolishment. On July 4th, they finally declared under God and to the world that they would no longer participate as chattel of a tyranny. They pledged their lives and their sacred honor to this promise to the 3 million Whigs that populated the colonies. They fought tyranny with arms and made no compromise that would surrender their promise.

Shortly after, representatives of the colonies came together and formed the Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union. This was the first and original constitution of this nation. This document laid out the new government in such a way that there would be extremely limited centralized authority over the newly free states. A State is a nation unto itself. Each of the new States was a nation unto itself, to be ruled by a government approved by the people of each state.

Shortly after this, a second group of representatives from these independent states came together to revise and update the Articles, but instead drafted an entirely new document called the Constitution of the United States of America. This document was manifestly incongruent to the Articles, and gave vast authority to a centralized government, made the independent states a subordinate unit under that centralized authority, and deprived the people of their right to define their lives for themselves.

In short order, the revolution finally returned the people to their original plight. A centralized authority that could dictate to them and use coercion and violence to enforce those dictates, having never asked for the consent of the governed.

Today, we celebrate the 4th of July, as we should. It was a day of unity with the will of the people. A separation from injustice, tyranny, and manufactured scarcity. What we must remember is that the nefarious amalgamation of the virtues of liberation and plight of government are not what we are celebrating. We must not toast a government that has stolen our inherent rights and our inheritance while claiming authority and unproven consent. We must remember the injustice of the original formation of the centralized government and work in every way possible to deny the thieves their plunder.

The only thing standing between genocide or overt slavery and our living free is the arms we bear. It is the single most important factor in preventing the abuse and violence of governments and bullies and thugs of all types. They crave power and authority over others, while the free people claim authority over only themselves, treating others with respect and dignity. A bully demands you surrender to them and their ways. When you are weak, dependent upon them, and have no means to defend yourself seriously from them, they can do this overtly. When you are confident, strong, fortified, courageous, and armed to the teeth, they must be quiet and await the day of your negligence.

Today, the bully has grown strong, like a wolf it circles, ready to pounce as they firelight dims and you drowse. We have grown weak, dependent, negligent, lazy and stupid. But all is not lost. There are those of us that are geared up, knowledgeable, ready to gather at the right time, to teach and learn, to lead and follow, to fight and to build. We are the sentinels of the four directions, sword and shield in hand and ready. We are vigilant, merciless toward the wolf alone, and pillars of moral courage in the face of the depravity of social devolution and authoritarian barbarism. Are you the sleeper or the sentinel? Would you jump on a grenade without a second thought for your brother or sister. Would you hold the criminals to account? Would you stand vigilant at the gates of hell, and never waver, to protect the people? Then I call you my own, a warrior.

Every society has had its warriors. Today, the warrior is the one who takes the risk, so others do not. Maybe you are creating marketplaces for free people like Ross Ulbrecht. Maybe you are running toward the danger to protect others like Johnny Hurley. Maybe you are a teacher, teaching children how to think rather than what to think, despite the government indoctrination center mandates, like John Gatto. Maybe you are building drones that spray paint over traffic cameras like some of our anonymous friends may be doing. Maybe you are taking a stand against the IRS like Larken Rose. Maybe you are revealing the true nature of government like Etienne de la Boetie². Maybe you are building underground bunkers for communities. Maybe you are blowing a whistle on the complete inanity of vaccination, hospitals, and the AMA. In whatever way you come forward, the duty of the warrior is... Standing as a bastion of liberty, speaking truth, and carrying the burden of securing Liberty vigilantly.

A revolution requires injustice and anger. A Renaissance requires a strong container.

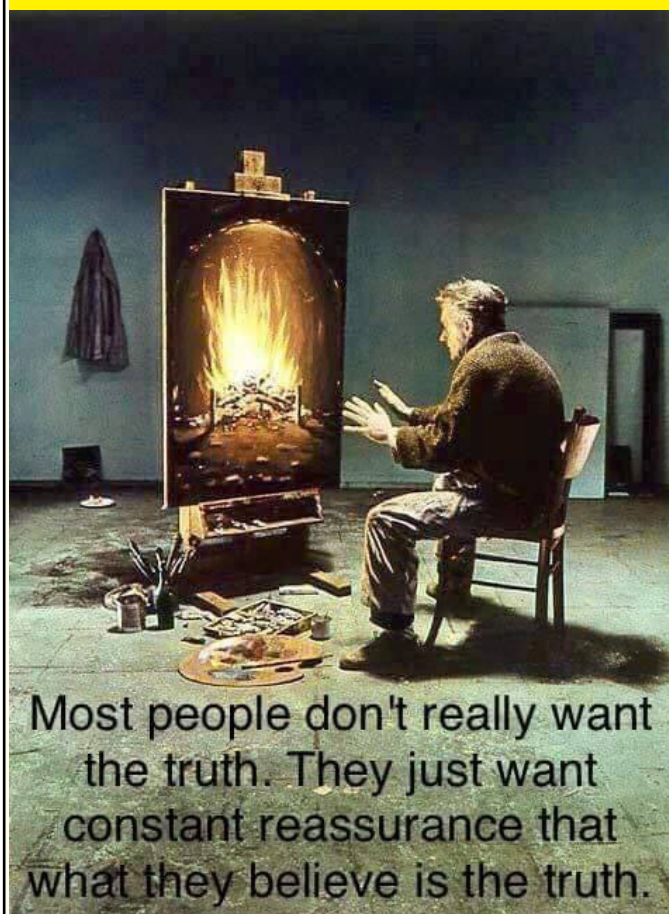

When men are men and women are women, and the core family is strong. When the community is self-sufficient and people accountable to each other. When value is properly measured by consensual interaction. When the sentinels are immovable objects. When principle matters more than longevity. When dignity matters more than convenience. When liberty is not something we seek but something we create everyday by our actions. Then shall we know Freedom. Then we shall have our Renaissance. An enlightenment worthy of the transition into a new age.

-Corey Haag

Liberty is a State of Being.

In 1776 we declared Independence, not implicitly to form new government to dominate our lives, but simply to be independent from tyranny. Those who crave power have wormed and worked their way to tyrannical control once again. It is our time now to declare our Independence from such psychopaths. Make your mark for Liberty and Freedom. Deny False Authority.
Be Free.

Most people don't really want the truth. They just want constant reassurance that what they believe is the truth.

GOVERNMENT:

IF YOU REFUSE TO PAY UNJUST TAXES, YOUR PROPERTY WILL BE CONFISCATED. IF YOU ATTEMPT TO DEFEND YOUR PROPERTY, YOU WILL BE ARRESTED. IF YOU RESIST ARREST, YOU WILL BE CLUBBED. IF YOU DEFEND YOURSELF AGAINST CLUBBING, YOU WILL BE SHOT DEAD. THESE PROCEDURES ARE KNOWN AS THE RULE OF LAW.

-EDWARD ABBEY.

Right to Bear Arms

Sometimes people from the USA tell me that they couldn't stand to live in Mexico, because the right to bear arms is not respected. I say, it depends what you mean by "respected". According to the letter of the law, one requires a permit, and permits are rarely granted. However, there is more to law than statutes.

A few times a month I ride to town on an ATV. On a notice on the side of the vehicle it says very clearly not to ride it on public roads. I don't really know if it's legal to ride them on public roads. As with many things in Latin America, rules can be fuzzy, and Internet searches rarely produce any complete answers. However, I do know I do it regularly, and so do most people in town. The 'cuatrimoto' is such a part of culture in rural Mexico that it is mentioned in country songs, and recognized – though subtly – as a symbol of freedom and independence, comparable to a horse. Suffice to say, it would be a rare day if a person were arrested or charged for riding a quad in any town of the Republic.

The relevant maxim of law is stated in Bouvier's law dictionary as "Communis error facit jus. A common error makes law." I prefer to phrase the idea as "Custom is law." The maxim is recorded in the common law tradition, but it is a rule so fundamental that it is always respected, sooner or later. You can force one person to comply with a rule they don't agree with, but it's much harder to force an entire people.

As a further example, for a year or more, businesses in downtown Guadalajara and the fancier parts of the city would demand that people wore masks to enter. At some point, people and businesses decided that it was no longer useful, or no longer credible, and people would walk in without even pretending to respect the rule. A week later the governor of Jalisco decided that the numbers of cases and deaths from COVID were suddenly low enough that masks were no longer necessary. Clearly the state was trying to save face – the people were the ones who made the decision.

A fascinating case that many freedom-lovers are aware of is the autonomous community of Cherán, Michoacán. The good people of Cherán had been bullied for years by police, politicians and cartels. One day they finally decided they'd had enough. They took up arms and pushed all of the bullies out of town. Again, the state learned to respect their autonomy, to make it look as if they were the ones in control.

Another important rule in law is the castle doctrine, that "a man's home is his castle." It dates back to Roman times, when it was considered dishonorable to arrest a man in his own home. It is maintained in many common law and civil law jurisdictions, but how it is applied varies. In Mexico, a police officer will not follow you onto your property. John Galton and Lily Forrester told many stories about pushing that rule to the limit – nearly getting detained, then rushing home to slam a gate in the cops' faces and telling them they cannot enter.

The other application of the castle doctrine is that every home in Mexico can have one firearm to defend it. The right to keep arms is stated in the Constitution of 1917, with the proviso that certain arms may be restricted by federal law, and federal law will decide where you can carry the arms. Transporting arms is illegal without the correct permit, so apparently how you get the weapon to your home is your own problem.

The Mexican national anthem Mexicanos, Al Grito de Guerra is written in a Spanish now antiquated, and many are confused by its phrasing. Nonetheless, if you look at some YouTube comments you can see that people throughout the world admire the poetry of lyricist González Bocanegra.

The Geopolitics & Empire Podcast has been on the cutting edge of independent media for over a decade, often talking to high-level experts you've never heard of, breaking stories (e.g. Francis Boyle Covid bioweapon), and getting deplatformed by the DHS and NATO! The Ron Paul Institute described us as "the real underground, where the real intellectual revolution is taking place."

Follow us at GEOPOLITICSANDEMPIRE.COM!

Personally, I am moved to tears every time I hear it, feeling deeply the spirit of what it means to be free. My friend Mr. Battle once said, "If people listened closely to the national anthem, there would be a revolution every day."

The third verse states "Before, Fatherland, you allow your children to be disarmed - bending their necks under the yoke - may your fields run with blood, and may blood run underfoot; May your temples, palaces and towers crumble with a horrifying roar, and may their ruins stand to say: here was the homeland of a thousand heroes." Noble words, to represent a still nobler people.

One distinction that many overlook is the difference between country folk and city folk. Even living as free as I have for many years, I wonder if I had been domesticated by living in cities of millions. There the roads are clear and well-established, and so can be the ways of thinking. Out here in the country, I learn from rugged and practical men, who improvise solutions with wire, wood and earth, who frequently cut new paths with machetes.

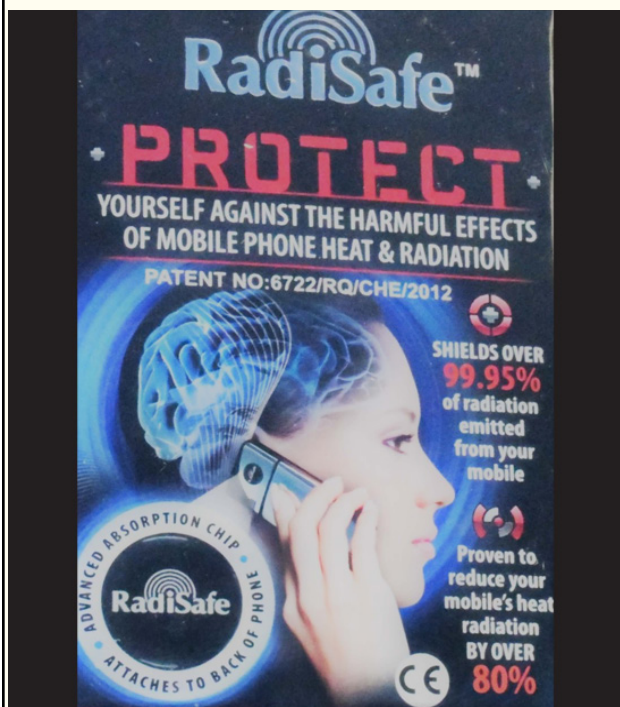

The chaos of a city pales in comparison to the order of nature. Pavement may be planned and laid carefully and precisely in a city, laid out by written ordinances. In the country, a tree grows according to the law of nature. These differences are certainly reflected in the mentality of the two peoples. If you seek common sense, the homegrown wisdom can easily come from a country man.

In 1996 the federal Australia government decided that they would ban many types of firearms. Most accepted the dictate without protest, but a small group of farmers and shooters came out to show their support for weapons. According to the Australian Criminal Intelligence Commission, there were close to 3 million registered firearms in Australia in 2018, and an estimated 300,000-600,000 illicit firearms.

That is for a country with a relatively passive populace, so you can imagine what it might be like in Mexico. The legal consultant to the Mexican Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Alejandro Celorio estimates that Mexico comes in as the fifth country in the world for numbers of unregistered firearms.

The point is, if you want to find an arm in Mexico, you can find one. Mexico, like many parts of the world, is a place where people find their way in the cracks, living there and working there. This is a place where freedom can survive. Those few who allow the blood of their ancestors to stir in their hearts, and pound with a passion for what is just, will make it so.

Liberty Uncensored Info

We are a Freedom Oriented Newsprint. We are Liberty UNCENSORED!

We are uncompromisingly intent on our purpose to disseminate fact-based content that can illuminate what has been obscured, rectify what has been perverted, and light a fire under the asses of the people who have been ensorcelled into living death.

We love our world, our humanity, and our story. We have chosen to be a part of that story by correcting what has been redacted and rewritten by corruption. We want a different path. We are mankind. We are the holy birth of the creative capacity of the universe. We need to remember this and create something better.

Let us never waver in the confrontation with villainy, whether the villain inside or the many outside.
